CHAMPIONSHIP FORM was displayed by Barbara (Mrs. Tom) Handley last week as she took time out from housewifely chores in Carmel Valley to win the California State Women's Amateur championship at Pebble Beach. Winner of many golf titles a decade ago, Mrs. Handley has considered herself "retired" for several years. Retired or not, she was sharp enough Saturday to defeat the U.S. Women's Amateur champ, Laura Baugh, adding this handsome antique silver coffee set and champagne-sized trophy to her collection of tournament awards. Bill Brown nominated to head CVPOA in '72

Insurance man Bill Brown heads a slate of officers to be voted upon at a general membership meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association in January.

The report of a nominating committee submitted to the CVPOA board meeting last week also lists the following officers and directors for 1972:

Mike Tancredi, vice president; Victoria Gibson, secretary; Karl Hall, treasurer; and directors Jim Luttrell, Frank Moody, Mary Sigourney, Almira Davis, John Dowdakin, Glynn Lockwood, Robert Marble, William Rusher and Stephen Thigpen.

Nominations will be accepted from the floor at the January meeting, which directors have tentatively set for either Jan. 13 or Jan. 27.

The pros and cons of county participation in the National Flood Insurance Program, and what this would mean in terms of benefits to the individual property owner, will be the subject of a panel discussion at the January meeting.

CVPOA directors plan to invite several experts, including one or more county officials, an insurance agent and someone from the State office which is helping to administer the program to participate in the meeting.

The general membership will also be asked to vote on a by-law change to make the spouse of an active CVPOA member eligible for membership with the payment of an additional $2 membership fee.

Directors approved the change last week, after CVPOA president George Sackman commented that "this has been the de facto case for some time, but it is a technical point we should clarify."

In other action, the CVPOA directors discussed plans for three new developments—George Lockwood's 13-home subdivision on Rancho del Robledo, William Garland's 25-home subdivision at the western end of Garzas Road, and Larry Cumming's seven hillside lots overlooking Rancho Fiesta Road.

The discussion was informational only, and no action was taken on any of the proposals.

On Lockwood's development, Thigpen reported that Ed Lee, a member of the county-wide committee that drew up a proposed hillside conservation ordinance, has inspected the property and plans and had concluded that Lockwood's proposal "asks for considerably less than the most restrictive standards ever applied or suggested for any ordinance."

Jack Van Zander, engineer with George Bestor and Associates, answered questions about the Garzas Road development. He said that access will be via Boronda and Garzas Roads, but that no development is contemplated beyond the proposed 25 homes.

Van Zander said that Garland is checking into the possibility of irrigating the upper mesa to make it a year-round pasture for cattle.

On other matters, the directors voted to send a letter to Supervisor Willard Branson expressing the CVPOA's pleasure with his appointment of Charles Kramer to the Planning Commission.

Three directors—John Dowdakin, Robert Marble and St. E.P. Tyner—were named to a committee to pinpoint areas in the Valley in which old zoning might permit spots of high density in areas otherwise zoned for one-acre development.

A study group was also named to make recommendations to Planning Commission chairman Edward Marcucci to fill four vacancies on the Upper Valley Advisory Committee.

Schedule of Carmel Valley hearings

Carmel Valley airstrip -- Board of Supervisors will hear appeal from Planning Commission decision granting use permit for underground gasoline storage tanks and pumps on Dec. 14, 2 p.m.

Rancho del Robledo -- Planning Commission hearing on tentative subdivision map scheduled for Dec. 15, 10:25 a.m.

Robles residents tell it like it is

By PAT GRIFFITH

What do Robles del Rio residents have to say about their forested neighborhood, their very special community within a community that has drawn vacationers to sunny Carmel Valley since the 1920's?

Is this choice area, as some fear, endangered by over-development? Is traffic really a problem? Are drainage and septic tank problems commonplace?

Should zoning be used as a tool to inhibit growth on the upper slopes of Robles?

To get response to these questions—which have been raised before the Monterey County Planning Commission and reported in last week's Outlook—several Robles del Rio residents were called at random this week and asked for their ideas. Here are their replies:

Tracy Goold, Buena Vista Del Rio: "We're very concerned, and have been for the last six years. I wish something had been done long ago. I think building has gone hog wild here. Since we are located at the bottom of the hill, we swim in everybody's sewage all winter...we're in the disaster zone that was written up three years ago.

"But we're very prejudiced. We think Robles is the neatest area in the Valley and we want it to stay that way. We aren't against all building, but it is a question of how far you can go before we get appropriate drainage facilities.

"And we are very frightened about a bad fire. We worry about it all the time, where it used to be that there weren't so many people, and it didn't seem as much of a danger."

Dennis Guthrie, W. Carmel Valley Road, former resident of Calle de Quien Sabe: "I think Robles is okay the way it is, but I do think there could be a lot of work done on the roads. You can't straighten them out, and I hate to say it, but lots of trees should be cut down or thinned out because there are too many places where kids are playing in the street and you can't see around the curves. I know that might not be popular, but you've got to be realistic sometimes. There are going to be a lot more people moving up there and you can't stop them, that's for sure."

Paul A. Fields, 53 Lower Circle: "No one is making any money in Robles. There are shanties in this place. My place is a shanty itself. I bought this a long time ago. I paid $75 for the lot in 1927 and the house and everything was built up for not more than $1000.

"Now the taxes are awful. They're just terrible. My little shanty and lot, with part of it gone, is valued at $12,000. It should be about $500, because it's so old.

"But the water where I am is good. It's pure. And the other places around here don't bother me."

Mrs. Charles W. Rose, Esquiline Road: "We feel there are too many houses in Robles now. I don't think traffic is a problem along Esquiline Road—it's mostly young people going back and forth. I do feel that the lots in Robles should be bigger. When we lived on Lower Circle, the people next door were almost never there, so we didn't have any problems. But I do know of many people who had problems with drainage and septic tanks, mostly people living behind us up on the hill."

Jack W. McKay III, Calle de la Ventana: "First and above all, we really love the area. There are problems, but thanks to a few good people, these are mostly kept under control. Since this was the first subdivision, it could turn into a slum area.

"After a heavy rain, somewhere you get a stench. Of course the ultimate is a sanitary sewage system; that will come one day.

"I would favor some rezoning for upper Robles. We bought up here and built up here because of the elbow space. It really irritates me when I drive by and see an older home, and then the next thing you know the land is cut in half and a new house is going in. This place isn't set up for close quarters living. This is really a sore spot with me."

Michael Mazzitelli, 64, Southbank Road: "Density is causing a problem everywhere. The only thing about Robles is it has most of the older homes. If you have out-of-town owners, they are going to rent them for what they can get.

"I have a creek that runs through my property, so I'm concerned about what happens when it rains. I've only lived here one year, and last year it wasn't big or a problem. Most of the homes where I am are new, so I really don't know of any special problems with them...

"I'm mostly concerned with the breaking up of larger pieces of land into small lots."

Claude Houseman, Esquiline Road: "I've only been here three and a half years and I've never been happier in my life. I have no immediate neighbors. I take good long walks and I enjoy the scenery. I think I've been very fortunate.

"Oh, once in a while I might get a whiff of a septic tank someplace, but other than that, I don't know of a thing wrong."

David Hildebrand, Camino de Travesio: "I live up on the hill pretty far. I think everyone is concerned about over-population. But I'm not personally aware of any septic tank problems. I've lived in the Valley 25 years. I was in it when there was nothing.

"There's too damn many people. I think that's everybody's opinion. But I can't see that anything can be done about it as long as developers are opening up the land and getting their building permits."

William W. Hawes, Salsipuedes: "I've had no problem. I've noticed reports about drainage problems, but frankly I don't know anything, for or against. I'm up on a knoll where if anyone is going to complain, it is the people below, and no one has said anything to me.

"Yes, I think traffic is a problem, particularly some of these cowboys that want to race around at all hours of the night. I don't like it, but I don't know what you can do about it.

"Having just one road out of here doesn't bother me particularly. But I'm not in favor of increasing the density of population here more than what we have to put up with. I've lived here for 20 years, and I've seen a lot of changes. But there hasn't been any particular development on my dead end little street."

Mrs. John Haller, Laurel Drive, former resident of Hitchcock Canyon: "I do believe it is getting too overcrowded there. We did have problems with our septic tank overflowing. It was right up against the hill, and water came pouring down the hill and filled it up, and we had to have it pumped out once. Of course since we've moved, we haven't had any problems like that."

Spencer Rauber, Los Tulares, former resident of River Road: "I lived there three years. I'd say that the number one problem is the dogs. They are beyond comprehension. Your garbage isn't just dumped over, it's strewn down the street. Sewage is a problem there, but there's no way to solve it because the ground has such poor percolation, so why criticize? Where I lived on River Road is one place with good soil, but it is saturated. When I see a new house going in there, no matter where it is, it is misplaced.

"And there's just one little lousy road going in there. Every hour you'd hear a screech of brakes when a car would hit that bridge too fast."

Peter J. Wangoe, 60 Calle de los Ositos: "My answer to the problem is rather radical, but would solve it. If enough dollars could be brought together to buy about 20 properties that are really run down, and then have them bulldozed down and build nice homes on those lots, you'd have the worst problem solved.

"When you're going up Los Ositos from the sharp turn on up to the Lodge, I can't think of any delapidated places along there. But when you go into Hithcock Canyon and around Lower Circle, there are some places that are rather detrimental.

"I think the garage and gas station and Rosie's Cracker Barrel are the biggest detriment of all and should be plowed under first...unless someone could put some new redwood siding on the store, and put up a redwood fence at the gas station so all the junk cars would be hidden behind it, then that would really be improved...

"I defy anyone to give me a similar entrance to any other residential section that is as derogatory and depressing as the entrance into Robles...

"Right across the street from that spot is the biggest lake in the area. That's really bad news. If the county is responsible for it, it should be filled in...

"As far as a sewer system is concerned, I am on a hillside, and I just spent a lot of money to have a drainfield enlarged. I know of specific instances where pure raw sewage is seeping directly into the river. The people have told me about it. Most of the problem is in the low-lying sections. Those things are very bad.

"The person with a problem is the one in a summer vacation cottage built 30 years ago...But I can't see how we can get hooked onto a sewer system very soon...

"As far as rezoning, I don't know...if a person is going to build on a half acre lot, I think there are very few contractors who will put in an inadequate septic tank. This person would porbably have a better sewage system and a super-adequate drainage field and be better off than the existing ones that are inadequate, because they were built 20 years ago and meant for summer use only and aren't much more than a hole in the ground with a bucket around it.

"I know it is a problem for some people if they are told to get a new septic tank, especially for someone who is retired. I think the county should help them find out about some of these low-interest federal home improvement loans. I read in Sylvia Porter's column there is a loan for $2000 that can be repaid over a 30-year period. Someone in the county who has the time and information should help people apply for these loans. A lot could be done here with just a little pressure from the residents and the county."

ALL EYES WERE ON THE BALL as Barbara Handley of Carmel Valley teedoff at Pebble Beach Golf Course Saturday in the finals of the California Women's Amateur championship. Sixteen holes later she had bested U.S. Amateur champion Laura Baugh 3 and 2 to take her first major title since 1961. William C. Brooks Photo.

BARBARA HANDLEY

'Retired' Carmel Valley golfer wins state title

In between shopping for groceries, making doll clothes for a Christmas present for her niece and sewing a new bedspread with matching lampshades last week, Barbara Handley managed to get out to Pebble Beach to play a few rounds of golf.

When it was all over Saturday afternoon, the diminutive brunette from Robles del Rio was the elated winner of the California Women's Amateur Golf championship.

Her unexpected victory -- unexpected because she had "retired" from serious golfing 10 years ago -- came at the expense of 16-year-old Laura Baugh of Long Beach, the current U.S. Women's Amateur champion and the pre-tournament favorite.

"I really am retired," chortled the three-handicap golfer as she reviewed the week's events amid the relative calm of her early Americana home.

"I like being a housewife. I love to sew. I love to cook. I paint. I'm busy all the time. I only get out to play golf now about once every two weeks.

"Oh, I used to practice eight or nine hours a day when I was younger. But no more. Uh uh.

"I entered this tournament just because it's local, right here at Pebble Beach. My husband told me to get out and practice for it, so I went out the weekend before and hit a bucket of balls and I was completely exhausted! And there were only about 30 balls."

Practice or no, what happened Saturday was not a fluke.

A one-time tomboy and an instinctive athlete, Mrs. Handley started golfing at the age of 16 at the Richmond Golf and Country Club. A year later she was runner-up in the California Junior tournament, and by the time she was 18, she was hitting the tournament circuit as far away as Florida.

She won the California State Women's Amateur title in 1959 and 1960, and was rated fifth in the United States among women amateurs in 1961.

That was also the year she was first alternate to the U.S. Curtis Cup Team, winner in the National Mixed Foursome tournament and the International Four Ball tournament and -- as joyfully recorded by photographers -- was chosen the Most Beautiful Woman Golfer.

Between the ages of 18 and 24 she won 11 junior tournaments, was national amateur quarter finalist three times and North & South semi-finalist twice.

SECRETARY, TOO

She put all that behind her at the grand old age of 24 to work as a secretary in the trust department of Crocker Citizens National Bank in San Francisco.

For two years her golfing was limited to summer vacations in Carmel. On one of her visits she met a weekend golfer named Tom Handley, and her life changed course again.

Married six years ago, they settled into a comfortable one-bedroom home part-way up the Robles hill. Golf has been stricktly a sometime hobby ever since.

She and her husband, owner of H & H Supply in Seaside, like nothing better than to spend long weekends camping and fishing in remote areas in northern California. They have just bought a cabin in Happy Camp, 60 miles south of the Oregon border, where they hope to "get away from it all" several times a year while fishing for steelhead in the Klamath River.

About twice a month they do get over to Corral de Tierra Country Club for a round of golf. "Tom is down to a nine handicap and beats me more and more often," she said proudly.

As she looks back on the "old days," she feels women golfers took it all much more seriously then.

"At least I know I was awfully serious. But now it's just great. Those gals out there at Pebble were really nice. They had a lot to offer. I really thought a lot of them."

Ironically, while warming up for last week's tournament, she played part of the course with Laura Baugh. As they parted company, Miss Baugh joked: "I'll see you in the finals!"

"When we started out on that last round," Mrs. Handley said, "I looked at her and laughed and said 'I don't believe it!' "

None of the spectators, however had to be convinced.

All of 5 feet 4 inches tall, Mrs. Handley packs a wallop with every one of her well-placed 109 pounds. (She once tipped the scales at 122 pounds, and promptly joined Weight Watchers to get back down to "fighting trim.")

DRIVES 220 YARDS

She drives an average of 210 to 220 yards. "I'm not as strong as some, but my woods are my best shot. While a lot of gals are best with their irons, I'm better with the woods because they are lighter and easier for me to control."

She feels the Pebble Beach course tends to bring out her best effort.

"Underneath, I'm a real competitor. And Pebble is a fun golf course. You step up on the tee and you know you're playing a real course. There's a lot of history and tradition there. I always get keyed up there. I can't wait for the next hole."

Although she doesn't know why, last week was the first time she wasn't really nervous during a tournament.

"I'd tee off and play, and then leave and go home and do my grocery shopping and fix dinner, and I'd sometimes laugh at myself and think, 'Barbara, is this really you doing all this?' "

It wasn't until the commotion that erupted after her victory, and the deluge of phone calls from friends, that she began to feel jittery.

And it wasn't until she read newspaper accounts of her triumph that she got a mite upset.

"They called me a 'veteran,' " she fumed, torn between laughter and horror. "Imagine! I'm 33 years old and they call me a 'veteran!' That really hurt a little. It will take me awhile to get over that. I mean after all, 33 isn't exactly over the hill . . ."

Of course, the stories could have said that she played like an old pro . . .

UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

SALLY MAE TWOHIG and John Howard Warrington exchanged vows in a garden ceremony performed at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday at Rancho Del Monte Resort. The Rev. Dennis Franklin of the Victory Temple Church of God officiated.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white velvet trimmed with lace ruffles at the bodice and tiny pearl buttons. The garland of rosebuds and bouvardia for her hair matched her nosegay bouquet with white satin streamers.

Miss Sharon Dranshank, bridesmaid, complimented her long gown of forest green and white with a nosegay of baby mums in autumn hues of gold, yellow and white. William Apger of Carmel served as best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Twohig of Pancho Way in Carmel Valley. She is a graduate of Carmel High School. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Warrington of Vancouver, Washington, are parents of the bridegroom. He attended schools in Vancouver and is a Full Gospel Minister. Following a reception at Rancho Del Monte, the couple left on a wedding trip to Vancouver where they will make their home.

Among the out of town guests were the bride's aunt, Mrs. Eugene McAteer of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. John De Polo from Redwood City, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Twohig from Santa Cruz.

YOU MAY BE ASSURED Natalie Raymond will never travel again without a supply of plastic sandwich bags in her handbag! With Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Blacow and Mrs. Edward Chappell she returned recently from a camera safari in Africa. While on a game drive the Land Rover in which they were traveling sprung a leak while touring an isolated volcanic crater. Leaving the Valley-ites with the stranded vehicle on the floor of the crater, the Swahili Ranger left to return with a truck-load of natives who offered their assistance and water bag. Daylight was fading, their location would have been most dangerous after dark, and still the car could not be repaired—UNTIL Miss Raymond found the insignificant bit of plastic which held until they were able to reach their lodge and safety.

The experience was just one of many which began for the foursome when they flew to London for a three-day tour before they flew to Nairobi. Here they joined a group of 35 people who were divided into groups of six in the search for game in Volkswagen buses. "The Ark" was their first stop where the animals were observed under floodlights at the waterhole. On to Mount Kenya Safari Club where the gardens were filled with exotic birds such as the crested cranes who came to the door of their cottage for feed. En route to Keekorok Lodge they encountered migrating herds of zebra, giraffe and hippo.

The Blacows, who had made the trip last year, but a month later, had then driven through thousands of migrating animals. This year they noted that the animals were more content to graze and lions and hippos were more plentiful. At Killagooney Lodge in Tsavo National Park, the seats on the veranda brought the animals even closer. It was here they watched the indoctrination into jungle society of a zebra baby born under the trees and the attack on a water buffalo by 13 lions. The villains were driven off by a bull elephant who had priority on the waterhole with a herd of six and their young. Mildred Blacow describes the travel over roads which leave a great deal to be desired as "bone shattering"...but wouldn't it be exciting and fun!

WANTED! Cubmaster for Carmel Valley. Anyone with an interest in small boys (may be retired and not necessarily a parent) willing to devote two nights a month to same is desperately needed by 30 Valley boys. The Valley Pack presently consists of two Dens (one led by Pat Cummings with Nancy Hogans assisting; the other den mother is Nancy Avila assisted by Jan Holland) and the Webelos led by Harold Waymire. The present charter for the organization has expired and unless a new Cubmaster is found can not be renewed. With these many youngsters "turned on" to this worthwhile program won't ONE sympathetic adult contact one of the ladies mentioned above and volunteer his services?

The last pack meeting was a salute to the Thanksgiving holiday. The Webelos presented the colors followed by a Thanksgiving skit with Den II appearing as Pilgrims and Den I as Indians. Among the awards presented were:

Aquanaut and athlete awards to Ray Lubec, Joey Sturgill and Rick Petkus;

Sportsman Award: Jeff Hogans;

Neatness Award: David Casarez;

Uniform and Engineers Award: Rick Petkus.

BROCADE CLOTHS adorned with golden wreaths and red ornaments cast the holiday spell over any lady who had not been caught up in the flurry of the season's approaching events at the Carmel Valley Women's Club luncheon last week at Rancho Del Monte Resort. Mrs. Richard Dick was chairman of the Christmasy luncheon and program of carols from many countries presented by the Community Chorus under the direction of Mrs. William Brodrick. Members of the Chorus include Mmes. John Woods, Jeremy Nittle, Kirk Gayman, Larry Huddleson, Tommy Tombleson, David Hoisington, Richard Hindman and Joseph Dionne.

St. Nicholas (in the person of Richard Carper) was mechanized for the affair and sailed into the dining room with his golf cart overflowing with gifts for the ladies.

You won't want to miss the January meeting planned for the Community Center on the 5th. It is to be a bridge and canasta party with the dollar donation qualifying some lucky player for the airplane tickets—surplus from the Fall Fiesta. Mrs. Paul Anthony and Mrs. Vera Stokes are co-chairmen of the afternoon; Mrs. R.M. Stoney and Mrs. Howard Vail of the card party. Ladies are invited to make up a table (please bring your own cards) or phone Mrs. Vail, 659-2587 for a table assignment.

IT WAS "MATSON CELEBRATION DAY" at the First Unitarian Church located at Geary and Franklin in San Francisco on the occasion of the retirement of Rev. Howard G. Matson. The Rev. Matson and his wife, Rosemary, have for many years divided their time between the city and their home in the Valley on Live Oak Lane.

"Before You Can Say Jack Robinson" was the appropriate title of his final sermon preceded by a champagne breakfast in the Matson's honor and followed by a reception—both 1791...1971...Carlos Alejandro Zepeda Moore became a very precious link in that span of years when his first great-great-great-grandmother, Ysabel Arguello was baptized in the Carmel Mission Basilica (her father, Jose Dario Arguello was the last governor of California under Spanish rule) and his own rites were performed recently by Rev. George McMenamin. Ramona Malarin, the great-great-grandmother of the six-week-old California native son, was also baptized at the Mission in 1832. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Somavia Moore of Rancho Rio Vista are parents of the infant. Mrs. Moore's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Zepeda of Monterrey, Mexico, were unable to attend so his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Zepeda of Guadalajara, Mexico stood as proxies.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Moore of Salinas and the Valley are his paternal grandparents. It is through the senior Mrs. Moore that Carlos becomes an eighth generation Californian. He joins a brother, Louis Edwardo, 9, and a sister, Maria Lizette, 7. A reception followed at the home of the baby's parents. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Jose S. Moore of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. Marihart of Pebble Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Zepeda. The Zepedas have returned to Guadalajara after several weeks on the Peninsula and an eight day visit to the Islands.

"A WARM VALLEY WELCOME" to Dr. and Mrs. James Hicks who recently purchased the Bud Hall home on Middle Canyon Road. Former Salinas residents, the Hicks' have two daughters, Stacy and Sara, both students at Tularcitos.

Recent houseguests have been his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hicks of Clear Creek in Lassen County. Mrs. Ethel Wiley marries at Reno

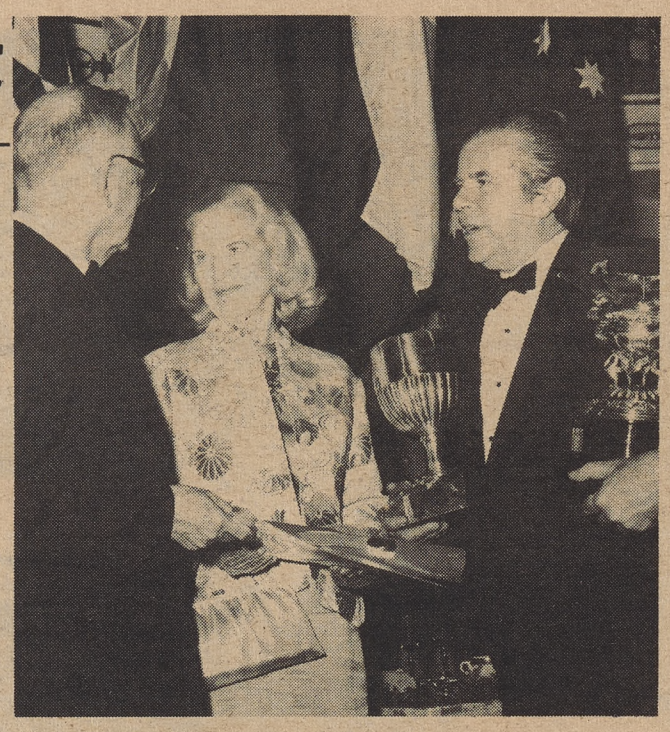
Of interest to her many Valley acquaintances will be the marriage of Mrs. Ethel Wiley to Oliver P. Taber, a long-time family friend of Reno, Nevada.

The 7:00 ceremony took place at the beautifully appointed home of the groom's son, the former Judge Harold O. Taber, in Reno, Nov. 27th. Judge Grant Bowen officiated at the ceremony with Mr. and Mrs. Harold O. Taber in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Taber are now at home on Valle Vista for the winter months and plan to return to their home in Reno in the spring.

The Tabers have been feted at an open-house reception hosted by the bride's daughter, Mrs. Robert Slangerup.

Signing the guest book were Messrs. and Mesdames Peter Hopkins, Wray Hiltabrand, Carl Baker, Tom Hagn, Leon Panetta, Wm. Broderick, R.M. Nessel, Jay Smith, Don Laird; Mrs. Ruth Angell, Mrs. Nell Scott, and Mrs. Don Waylett; Miss Joyce Freeman, Doug Wenger, Miss Molly Jacobs and Glynn Dennis.



INTERNATIONAL HONORS for film-making were bestowed recently on F. William Bryant, jr., right, son of the late Mrs. Marion B. Wilson of Carmel Valley. At the annual Cine Awards ceremony in Washington, D.C., Bryant received trophies for the first prize and grand prize won by his film "The Real World" at the 12th International Industrial Film Festival in Barcelona. Here Mrs. Bryant joins her husband in receiving congratulations from Dr. William G. Carr, Cine president. Bryant began his photographic career working with George T.C. Smith in Carmel Valley. He moved to New York after World War II and has been active as a producer in the motion picture industry.

MPVS gives to United Fund, symphony, Beacon House

At its final meeting of the current year last week, Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services closed its gift-giving for the season with several donations to local organizations and agencies. Members voted a gift of $1,000 to the Monterey Peninsula United Fund (Community Chest) toward the 1971 campaign.

The Monterey County Symphony Association was the recipient of $500 to be used as a Chair Support Gift to the Podium.

A like amount was given to Beacon House in Pacific Grove, to be used as they may see fit in their program to meet their present needs. This gift supplements prior funds allotted to this organization to assist in its support.

The Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula was also voted an additional gift of $500 to meet its current needs, supplementing funds given earlier in the present year.

To the Community Christmas Bureau operated by the Salvation Army, a donation of $250 was given to assist in the program of providing help to needy families during the coming holiday season.

Mrs. Arthur Black, membership chairman, introduced a new member of MPVS, Mrs. John C. Anderson of 78 Yankee Point Drive, Carmel.

The next general meeting of the membership will be held on the first Friday of the New Year, Jan. 7, at which time the newly-elected officers and committee chairmen will take office.

New Circle play resurrects a by-gone California era

A chapter from California's multi-faceted past was resurrected on the stage of the Circle Theatre in Carmel last week.

"They Knew What They Wanted" was Sidney Howard's Pulitzer prize-winning play in 1924, and tells what now appears to be a pathetic tale about sub-cultures in the Napa Valley of that almost forgotten era.

Sam Karas and John Hicks should be singled out for superlative performances in a play that is not remarkably provocative by playwrighting standards of the '70s.

Karas plays Tony Patucci, an ill-educated immigrant who makes a fortune in grapes and sets out on an ill-fated effort to find a wife. Hicks has the role of Father McKee, a priest whose compassion and realism relates closely to the explosive problems that the play unfolds.

Frances Bakun and Dan Libby have the other leading roles -- Miss Bakun as Amy, the San Francisco waitress who is willing to marry Tony sight unseen, and Libby as Joe, the itinerant farm worker who wrecks the marriage before it ever gets launched. The efforts at attempting to project complex human entanglements are to be commended, but their success falls somewhat short of a dynamic and empathetic interpretation that the roles would seem to demand.

The cast also includes Nick Zanides, Tony Byrd, Salvatore Troia and William Hicks, who fill in the niches of this Steinbeck-like drama of the vineyards.

A critique of the dialog is presumptuous except to say that on occasion it is frank and direct, but sexuality -- and this is what the play is all about -- is dealt with as delicately as in a senior class play. The action makes great demands on the players, since it is largely verbal, and awaits the final act before it achieves a degree of effectiveness.

Rosamond Goodrich directed in the Circle Theatre's new policy of selecting individual play directors since the departure of Michael Keller. She has an able staff of assistants, who recreated an effective setting of the mid-'20s, including both decor and costuming.

"They Knew What They Wanted" is playing weekends at the Circle Theatre on Casanova Street in Carmel. GMD

'South Pacific' to open at Studio Theatre Dec. 17

The Studio Theatre will open its Christmas season with "South Pacific" Dec. 17.

"South Pacific" is the musical adaptation of James A. Michener's highly popular and Pulitzer Prize winning "Tales of the South Pacific" with music by Richard Rodgers and book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II, the team responsible for "Oklahoma," "Sound of Music" and "The King and I."

"South Pacific" not only lived up to its expectations, but surpassed them. "Rodgers and Hammerstein have done it again!" shouted the critics. "One of the greatest plays in the history of the theatre," declared Richard Watts, jr. in the New York Post. Less than a week after the broadway opening, "South Pacific" was voted the best musical of the season by the New York Drama Critics Circle.

The action takes place on two islands of the South Pacific and the time is a lull during the fighting in the war with Japan.

The love affair of the worldly French plantation owner Emile De Becque and Ensign Nellie Forbush, a high-spirited nurse from Little Rock, Arkansas is the central theme. The secondary romantic plot is that of a likeable American Marine, Joseph Cable, and the beautiful Tonkinese girl, Liat. Surrounding them are such characters as Bloody Mary, a native woman involved in comical con schemes at the expense of the seabees, and Luther Billis, a knowing and earthy seabee who plays a wonderfully comic role.

"South Pacific" includes such famed songs as "Some Enchanted Evening," "Nothing Like a Dame," "Bali Hai" and "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair."

Under the direction of Bill Asp, with settings by William Stone, jr., "South Pacific" will play Thurs. thru Sundays until the first week in Feb. Special holiday performances will be presented Dec. 27, 28, 29. The Studio will be closed for Christmas Dec. 20-25.

Reservations are now being accepted for all performances at 624-1661 or 373-7438.

'Merry Month' starts tomorrow at Highlands Inn

"Merry Month" activities at the Highlands Inn, Carmel Highlands, get off to a gala start with the Christmas Tree Decorating Ceremony tomorrow (Friday) at 8 p.m.

One of the favorite local holiday festivities, the Decorating Ceremony is an evening of fun for the family, where guests and visitors, both young and old, bring ornaments to hang on the Inn's Christmas Tree. These ornaments have special meaning, for many are hand-made, and some have been handed down from past generations.

The Children's Choir from the Church of the Wayfarer, Carmel, will provide the traditional background of Christmas Carols under the direction of Mrs. Carl Welchner.

The Highland Bagpipers and the Country Dance Group of the Monterey Peninsula will also be on hand to make the glittering kick-off of the Christmas Season.

The public is invited to this event and also the annual Christmas Eve Yule Log Ceremony on Friday, Dec. 24 at 9 p.m.

Sunset views:

Fiddler rehearsals resound at Sunset

BY FRANK RILEY, MANAGER, SUNSET CENTER

THE WORD FOR SUNSET this week is "Fiddler." From every room and hallway come bits of dialogue, great bursts of song, kazotskis and leaps, beards and boots, peasants and officials -- with the velvet fists of Keller and Zearott keeping all the confusion organized. The result will be evident tonight when Hidden Valley Music Seminars - Theatre Division (as they point out in their ads) proudly presents the opening of the production of "Fiddler on The Roof." We think it is going to be great! Why go to San Francisco to see just a movie version when you can see it in living color and action at Sunset?

THOUGH this will be a hard act to follow, Sunset is undaunted. On Tuesday, the 14th, Carmel School presents its Christmas program at 7 p.m. On Wednesday, the 15th, River School offers its "Holiday Music Night" at 7:30 p.m. and on Saturday, the 18th, Carmel Youth Center presents its annual "Christmas Capers" show for two performances - one at 10:30 a.m. and the other at 2:30 p.m. Be sure to note the time change for this year!

AGAIN, we at Sunset want to extend a cordial Holiday Invitation to all to be here on the patio on Tuesday, the 21st, at 9 p.m. when Sunset joins with Hidden Valley Music Seminars in sponsoring a "Community Holiday Happening." We have asked all groups who go about the village singing carols to arrive here at 9 p.m. to join together with you, the people of Carmel, in a Carol Sing. There will be a brass quintette to accompany the singing and John Waddell to conduct; and at the end, Sunset will be serving simple refreshments to all. Do come and join us - get Christmas off to a good community spirited start.

'Community Holiday Happening' at Sunset Tuesday, Dec. 21

"In the interest of fostering a sense of community at Christmas time," Sunset Center and the Hidden Valley Music Seminars are combining forces for a "Community Holiday Happening" at 9 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 21 in the Sunset Center Patio, according to Sunset Manager Frank Riley.

The sponsoring organizations aren't limiting their invitation to Carmelites alone. Those who live in the surrounding areas are invited to attend the holiday fun as well.

All caroling groups who wish to participate in singing carols are requested to meet at 9 p.m. in the central parking area of Sunset. Upon their arrival singing groups will be combined into one chorus along with anyone else who would like to join in the singing program. Hidden Valley's John Waddell will conduct the chour and a brass quintet will play accompaniment.

After the singing session, Sunset will serve simple refreshments.

Petpourri

By JUDITH A. EISNER

THERE CAN BE no doubt about it -- Christmas is almost here. Most of us are in the Christmas shopping mood, and many of us are feeling more agreeable and generous to childrens' demands than we do at other times of the year.

The Santa Clauses about town - in department stores, in airplanes (flying into Carmel Valley airport) and wherever the jolly old fellow pops up, will soon be besieged with small fry breathlessly bursting out with their "I wants." And high on those lists will be "I want a puppy," and "I want a kitten."

Christmas and Easter find more young puppies and kittens being purchased and given as gifts than any other time of the year. Pet shops who carry larger animals often sell more at these two times of the year than they do the other 10 months.

Most parents are familiar with the "I want a puppy" syndrom if the family doesn't already have a dog. If the parents don't especially want a dog or cat, they have various defenses against their childrens' demands. But let's face it -- it's a natural and practically inevitable thing for children to want pets—it's part of the American way of life.

And at Christmastime, parents often find themselves weakening and saying, "Well, maybe we should let them have a puppy."

But should you?

We are a firm believer in pets, and a believer that children and dogs and cats (not to mention hamsters, rabbits, parakeets and turtles) go together.

But we are also realistic, and we know that all the childish promises in the world are quickly forgotten. You cannot count on any child below teen age to keep his earnest promises to take care of a pet.

A CHILD OF SIX years or older can certainly do much in the way of taking care of a pet, as long as his parents are there to remind (day in and day out), oversee and assist.

A six-year-old can mix a dog's dinner, provide clean water and do simple brushing. But he cannot always be trusted to control a large dog on a leash, to pick up after it, or to train it.

And unless there's a parent around to remind, "Did you feed Fido today? Did you change his water?" chances are the dog will go hungry.

Before you capitulate to your child's desires and agree to bring home a new puppy, understand that it's going to be an adult responsibility for a long time.

Children cannot housebreak a puppy, if only because they go off to school each morning and cannot take it out 25 times a day. Mother must housebreak the puppy.

Children are not able to do serious training because they lack the strength, stature and firmness to control a dog.

Children cannot market for the dog's supplies, assess its health and take it to the vet, protect it from danger or prevent unwanted breeding.

Mothers do all that. Fathers sometimes help, but by and large, the brunt of pet-owning falls on mother.

It's easy to give in; it's all-too-easy to find a puppy and bring it home; it's easy to enjoy and love a puppy. But it often gets very tedious caring for it day in and day out.

IN ORDER for a puppy to grow into a satisfactory house pet, child's playmate and adult companion, it requires a certain amount of attention.

As an obvious first, a satisfactory pet is a healthy, happy animal. Although some people derive a great deal of satisfaction from being a perpetual nurse to their dogs and cats, most of us don't have the time or inclination to cope with a chronically ill pet.

Assuming that a new pet comes from sound, healthy stock and is, hopefully, free of inherited weaknesses, you can maintain him in top-notch shape through a sensible regimen of sound diet, exercise and good preventive veterinary care (worming, shots and the like).

That part is easily accomplished; your local pet shop and veterinarian will be glad to help iron out any problems of feeding or routine care.

But as any mother will tell you, her idea of a satisfactory pet is not a muddy, unkempt, burr-tangled mess who tracks up her clean floors and sheds tufts of hair all over the upholstery. Besides, who wants the kids hugging such a dirty thing?

So there's grooming to be considered, as well as preventive "kenneling." Here, in relatively countrified areas, one cannot let a dog loose and expect him to remain spic and span. Your new puppy must have an outdoor area (or be exercised on a leash) that not only protects him from the obvious dangers of autos and other dogs, but that also confines his roamings.

There's a half-joke among dog breeders about the number of people who've bought a puppy and then gone out to buy a house with a fenced yard to keep it in...

The time, expense and energy that a new puppy demands are probably incalculable. You certainly cannot expect your children to meet them. It's up to you. But, on the other hand, the joys of having a good dog, and the lessons to be learned from him—lessons in love, faithfulness, responsibility—can more than repay the debt. But you should be aware that "a puppy for Christmas" is a long-term investment and an involvement for years to come.

Vern Yadon elected Ventana chairman

Vern Yadon, director of the Pacific Grove Natural History Museum, was elected chairman of Ventana chapter of the Sierra Club by the executive committee meeting last Wednesday at the home of Dr. Arthur Benoit in Pebble Beach.

He succeeds Roy Anderson of the County Counsel office, Salinas, who declined re-nomination as chairman after serving two years.

Dr. Benoit, a Monterey dentist, was chosen vice chairman; Verne Sidman was re-elected treasurer and Rod Holmgren secretary. Both are of Carmel.

New executive committee members are Dr. Benoit and Dr. John H. Phillips, jr. of Pebble Beach, director of Hopkins Marine Station. Jerry Lebeck, Pacific Grove photographer, was re-elected. Holdover executive committee members include Anderson, Dawn Cope, Glynn Lockwood.

Mary Ann Matthews of Carmel Valley, declining to run again, retired from the executive committee, although she continues as editor of The Ventana, chapter publication.

The executive committee voted to continue opposition to rezoning of the Odello property at the mouth of Carmel river, declaring there is no substantial difference between the current application and the original rejected by the supervisors last fall. Two main reasons for opposition were reiterated: high density at Carmel river mouth would multiply already serious traffic congestion and air and water pollution; large-scale building on the flood plain would increase pressure for channelization of Carmel river.

The committee also voted $200 to finance study of a large apartment complex contemplated in Sand City, which the Sierra Club is questioning.

Padre grapplers lose close matches

The Carmel High varsity and J.V. wrestling teams dropped close matches in their season openers against Watsonville Tuesday night. The varsity lost 33-39 and the J.V.'s 25-30.

Both defeats were incurred through forfeits. In varsity action the Padres were short a man in the heavyweight class while the J.V. roster was missing a wrestler in the 191-pound category.

Coach Bob Walthour was pleased with the "body-bending" efforts of varsity wrestlers John Jinishian, Dan Callaway and Steve Foley and J.V.'s Tom Snyder, Jim Challis, Bert Schoell, Mike Brock and Paul Sherman.

The Padres wrestlers will stage their first home match at 4 p.m. Friday against Aptos High School in the Padre gym.

Last year the varsity team placed second in the Mission Trails Athletic League with four individual league champs.

Living Christmas Tree sale

"Don't forget your mother at Christmas. Give the Earth a Tree!"

With this slogan the Ecology First Foundation, which has been operating the Monterey Peninsula Recycling Center at Forest and David, began its Living Christmas Tree Sale. It is encouraging everyone to buy living trees to decorate their homes during the holidays and then plant them as a symbol of the new year. Through the cooperation of youth groups on the Peninsula, the Foundation makes the offer with the sale of every tree to plant it for you, if you do not have a yard or space of your own.

"Whether you celebrate the birth of Jesus, the Festival of Lights, or the winter solstace," Gilbert Tortolani, president of the foundation said, "the event is one of a new birth, a lengthening of our days, a celebration of a new chance. We feel that planting a tree, instead of cutting one down, is truly symbolic of the holiday." The foundation is a non-profit organization.

The trees cost from six to seven dollars each, plus tax, and are from four to seven feet in height. They were obtained through the help of Russel Parvin of Parvin's Nursery and are on sale at the Center Tuesdays through Thursdays from 12 to 5, and on Fridays and Saturdays from 10 to 6. There will be no charge for picking the trees up from homes in any of the Peninsula cities and planting them. This will be done by the volunteers who also help to run the Recycling Center. The Center is located on David Avenue just off of Forest, behind the Hobby Shop. For more information call the Center at 372-9478.

EMERGENCY CALLS

Wet weather put the damper on fire hazards in Carmel Valley again last week, but the Valley's volunteer fire department was on the road even so, answering calls for medical help.

On Saturday at 1:07 p.m., Joseph Harlow of 66 Rancho Road was taken to Community Hospital in the fire department's Red Cross ambulance as a medical emergency. At 4:33 a.m. the following morning, Benton Foster of San Antonio, Texas, was transported from an outdoor campsite at Camp Stefani to Community Hospital when he suffered an asthmatic attack.

Pencil play turned out to be near-disaster for two-year-old Marc Hansell of 75 Hitchcock Canyon Wednesday night. The youngster was taken by ambulance to a local doctor for treatment at 9:56 p.m. after he stuck a pencil through an eyelid and into his nose. His eyeball was not damaged in the accident.

Despite a noticeable shortage of acorn mast in most areas, hunters taking the field for the opening of the band-tailed pigeon season Saturday should be able to spot birds in many areas.

The Department of Fish and Game said that large numbers of pigeons—the largest in recent years—have been seen in Monterey County.

Promising areas in Monterey County include Nacimiento Summit, Arroyo Seco, Piney Creek and Chews Ridge.

According to the DFG, the acorn shortage could cause movement of the birds before or during the season.

The limit for band-tails is eight per day, eight in possession. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. The season in the 45 central and southern counties will run through January 9.

Bill would exempt pleasure horses from property tax

Of interest to horsemen throughout Carmel Valley is legislation introduced by Assemblyman Bob Wood (R-Monterey County) which exempts horses and other pets from the personal property tax. The bill, which was passed by the Legislature and signed into law by Governor Reagan, will take effect for the fiscal year 1972-73.

Earlier this year, the County Assessors from throughout California met and recommended that pleasure horses be exempted from the personal property tax. Assemblyman Wood's bill would make California law conform to this new policy.

Wood said, "as the law presently stands, every pet owner in the County should be paying property taxes on their animal." Because it would be an impossibility for county assessors throughout the State to track down and assess each animal without exorbitant costs, only certain ones have been subject to this tax. "The horse," Wood added, "is the animal that has been taxed most frequently. Evidently, because of its size it is easier to locate and assess. Their value makes it worthwhile for the assessors to try and tax them."

Under the new law, all pets would be exempted from the property tax, including all horses used exclusively for a pet. "Of course," the Monterey County Assemblyman said, "animals used for breeding, or for other income or commercial purposes would not be exempt from taxes."

Another provision of the new law would exempt youth groups, such as 4-H or Future Farmers, from the in-lieu tax on cattle and sheep. Now, all cattle or sheep raised as part of a club project are subject to taxes like animals held for commercial purposes.

The bill exempts these animals from this tax and is designed to encourage young people to learn more about animals.

Insurance men warn of 'flammable' holiday

Candles flickering in the window, logs blazing in the fireplace, trees aglow with lights, mammoth meals roasting, gaily wrapped gifts are all symbols of the holiday season.

And potential fire hazards, warns the Consumers Insurance Information Bureau and the Carmel Association of Independent Agents.

More than 50 persons lost their lives in Christmas-weekend fires last year, the Bureau notes, while homes and other property valued at 3.9 million were damaged or destroyed.

A review of a home's fire safety rating and well-planned escape system for emergency use are therefore vital at the holiday season.

"It's especially important at this time of year," warned Tom Brown, president of the Carmel Association, "that children are never left alone -- even for a short time."

Among the other holiday home safety areas to be considered, the Bureau recommends that:

- Natural trees should be fresh-looking and firm-needled. The trunk should be sawed off an inch above the original cut to allow better water absorption. Set trees up away from heat sources -- especially fireplaces -- and in areas not blocking doors or stairs. Dispose of trees as soon as they begin to dry.
- Artificial trees should be clearly labeled as being made of fire-retardant materials. All trees with built-in lighting systems should display the Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) label. Indirect lighting only should be used on metal trees to avoid shocks.
- Candles must never be used on a natural tree.
- Check strings of lights for frayed and worn spots, loose connections, broken sockets. Look for the UL label. In general, U.S.-made bulbs are safest; imports may not meet quality standards.
- Never leave tree lights, or other indoor decorative lights, on while the house is empty or after everyone is asleep.
- Use only UL-labeled exterior lights outdoors.
- Decorations should be made of fire-retardant materials when possible. Cotton batting and decorative paper should be flame-proofed. Polystyrene foam is dangerous near lighted candles.
- Natural evergreen boughs dry quickly, burn readily and are best kept far from candles, the fireplace and other heat sources. Native straw decorations also are highly combustible.
- Gift wrappings should be disposed of quickly. But not in the fireplace.
- Matches and cigarette lighters are especially hazardous during the holiday season, the Bureau says, and should be kept well beyond the reach of children.
- Try to keep children and pets from playing near or under the tree.
- Electrically operated toys and appliances given as gifts should carry the UL label.
- Holiday decorations should be minimal in the kitchen and kept far removed from all heat sources and cooking areas.
- When using a chafing dish over an open flame, do not decorate the table with natural boughs or other flammables. Set up paper plates and napkins away from candles.
- Flaming desserts are popular and festive .but should be handled with care.
- Long skirts and loose sleeves may inadvertently sweep into a fireplace or candle and begin a blaze.
- Clothing given as gifts should be carefully selected.

"The holiday season is one of warmth and good cheer. Don't let it go up in smoke," Brown said.

PONY EXPRESS

By SUE SALLY HALE

Horses always have worms. There are many types. Some you can see because they are passed and show up in the fertilizer, some such as blood worms are not as readily visible. But year round all of the types are feasting inside your horse and taking a good toll.

Perhaps you've noticed that although you are feeding quite a bit your horse just doesn't look very good. His coat is coarse, he's ribby, his gums are pale, the whites in his eyes are full of red veins and he's not quite up to par. Chances are his worm-inhabitants are getting most of the value from his foods and his blood worms are making him anemic.

Don't fool yourself either, just because your horse is rotund, slick, and seemingly well, he can be just as wormy.

Act now, establish a good worming pattern. Twice a year have your vet tube worm. Once now after the first frost, and again in the spring. I say after the first frost because at that time the botflies will have died off. You know those little yellow specks on your horse's legs, etc. Those are botfly eggs, these get transferred to your horse's stomach, there they attach to the walls and grow. These have to go along with the worms.

In between vet wormings buy some prepared commercial wormer and feed this regularly. To help insure success do not feed the night or morning the vet comes and not for three hours afterwards.

Next week: floating and what shots are necessary.

"Coot shoot" rids golf course of unwelcome visitors

A problem of overpopulation was temporarily resolved on the fairways of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club last Thursday with a "coot shoot" authorized by the California State Department of Fish and Game.

Ed Haber, presdient of the CVG&CC, said the afternoon shoot eliminated at least 300 coots, or mud hens, which had arrived in a mass migration to the lush premises of the golf course.

Haber said that Fish and Game officials consider coots a problem throughout the state because they fill up bird sanctuaries and take food away from their less aggressive feathered cousins.

He said that periodically the problem becomes acute at the golf course, as hundreds or even thousands of coots arrive in waves of nighttime migration, and then decide to remain indefinitely to feed on the grain that is put out every morning for the mallards, doves and Canadian geese that are under the care of the club's grounds crew.

"You'd have to walk on a golf course to understand the mess they make," Haber said. "It is unbelievable. Beyond that, they eat the grass down to the nubbin and then take food away from the birds who do have a sanctuary here.

"I checked with the SPCA and the Fish and Game people again this year to see if they had any new solution to the problem. They didn't.

"We can't trap these birds, because a lot of them would be injured by the traps. Even if we could catch them some way, it would be hopeless. If you took them 100 miles away, they would just fly right back here."

Haber said that in the past the grounds crew has tried to thin the ranks of the unwelcome coots by shooting a few at a time in the early morning.

"But some of our residents complained about that, so we decided it might be better to have a really big shoot and get it over with.

"It's horrible. I don't like to kill anything. I put in 10 lakes and we raise these ducks from babies. There are about 150 to 200 mallards that we feed every day.

"But when we get 500 or 1000 coots or even more—this year we had at least 2000 on the property—we have no choice."

Haber said there is no way to know just when a new wave of coots will arrive to take up residence at the golf course. He said that last week's shoot was at the height of the migratory season.

None of the other birds living around the golf course were killed or injured.

Hidden Valley to offer 'A Christmas Carol' Dec. 22, 23 at Sunset

"A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens will be staged as the premier production of Hidden Valley Music Seminars' Children's Theater at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 22 and 23 at Sunset Cultural Center Theater.

Almost entirely original Dickens, there are few added lines, no alterations in the plot and all of Dickens' wonderful humor is intact. Not only is the show delightful fare for children, but the dialogue involved in Scrooge's transformation from penurious ogre to nice guy has proven to be great entertainment for adults as well.

The cast includes many performers who are well known in the Carmel area. Bob Barron of radio station KLRB will be featured as Scrooge. A graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Art, Barron has performed the role of Scrooge in a Los Angeles production of "A Christmas Carol."

Floss Larson, a regular on Peninsula stages, plays the Ghost of Christmas Future and the role of Mrs. Fezziwig. Bob Pace, also in the radio business with station K-OCEAN, will play the jolly Ghost of Christmas Present.

Others in the cast are Anna Bogart, Dave Drakos, Rosalind Heath, Mary Kilpatrick, Cappy McLeod, Don Porter, Wynn White and Jack Whittaker. Most of the players in the cast are playing dual roles.

The Children's Theater is primarily comprised of adults performing for children but in this production there are several children. Terrence Courreault will play Tiny Tim; Mindy Lipman will play Fan (Scrooge's little sister); Alan Drew will play the young Scrooge. Lorette Courreault will also be seen in several character roles.

Tickets are 75 cents for children and $1.75 for adults. All seats are on a first come, first served basis. More information is available by calling 624-6911.

Girls get equal treatment as boys in phys ed

BY PAT GRIFFITH

The Carmel board of education decided last night that the time has come to treat girls equally with boys as far as physical education is concerned.

After hearing a detailed presentation of the PE and after-school sports program now available in Carmel schools, the board directed the district to prepare an after-school sports program for elementary school girls that will be comparable to the activities long provided for boys.

"There's no question we have been discriminatory regarding the girls," Superintendent of Schools Harris Taylor conceded following the report on the district's recreation program.

Traditionally in the Carmel school district, boys in grades one through five had been able to play flag football or participate in other sports after school in programs supervised by the district's recreation office. For girls there has sometimes been tumbling or dancing, but only on a spasmodic basis and never at all five elementary schools at the same time.

"I think we should have an equal effort," Dr. Charles Snorf said.

Noting that in Southern California girls' competitive sports, including track, are now popular, Taylor commented "You're making history if you do this."

"It seems as though we're 30 years behind the times," Snorf replied.

The decision followed a report by Fred Pitts, principal of River School, who has served as chairman of the district's physical education curriculum committee for the past year.

PHYSICALS FOR ALL

Pitts reported that physical performance tests required by the State will be given to all Carmel students in the six-th,seventh, eighth, ninth and twelfth grades next spring. The mandated tests include pull-ups, side step, standing long jump, chair push-ups, sit-ups and jog-walk.

When the test was given last year, he said, the main weakness noted was a widespread inability of students to support their weight or lift their weight with their arms.

Dick Zury, chairman of the physical education department at Carmel Middle School and a member of Pitts' committee, told the board that letter grades are again being used in PE classes at Middle School. Last year students were graded pass-fail, with the option of working for an "A" grade if they wished.

Zury said that the letter grades were re-instituted at the request of physical education teachers, and have resulted in "more students following through on their responsibilities, and far fewer problems in class."

Trustee Richard Wilsdon replied that he still is opposed to letter grades in physical education because "I've never quite understood on what basis you could grade."

Board president James Brock said he would favor "some sort of standardization for the whole department" for grading.

Zury said that criteria have been established for girls and are now being devised for boys.

NEW COURSE

On a different subject, the board authorized Middle School to start a course in Algebra 1 for a selected group of 20 to 25 eighth grade students. Requirements and tests in the course will be the same as for Algebra 1 at Carmel High School, and eighth grade students who complete it successfully will be able to start out in Algebra 2 at the high school.

Taylor said that these advanced students will be required to take an additional year of mathematics in high school, after completing Algebra 2, before they may graduate.

On other matters, the board:

1. Hired Lucretia Butler of Carmel as a teacher for educable mentally retarded children at Middle School and the high school for the remainder of the school years. Miss Butler is being hired with funds provided to Monterey County in the Emergency Employment Act. She will teach three periods a day at Middle School and two at high school, enabling some Carmel students who have been attending special classes in Monterey to return to their own school district.

2. Approved a resolution to release and quitclaim the district's interest in the Palo Colorado school site to enable the district to return the one-acre property to the heirs of the original owners, Alvin and Flora Dani.

3. Granted sponsors of the Thirteenth Annual Monterey Peninsula Herald White Christmas Tennis Tournament permission to use the tennis courts at the high school and Middle School all day Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 20 and 21, and until noon on Wednesday, Dec. 22.

TEACHER EVALUATION

4. Heard a detailed report on the implications of the Stull bill, which requires each school board to adopt a uniform set of written objectives, evaluation and assessment guidelines for use in evaluating the professional competency of its classroom teachers and all other certificated personnel.

According to Dr. James Halcomb, assistant superintendent of schools, the new measure will require the district to establish "statements of critical instructional intent" (i.e. expected standards of student performance) for every level and every course offered in the district, or approximately 219 separate statements in all.

Halcomb said this will be accomplished with help from curriculum committees composed of teachers, students, parents and members of the board of education.

Taylor said the administration views the requirement as potentially valuable in helping the school district evaluate its entire program and establish specific goals for instruction.
